“ Looking at Mike's photograph gives me a sense of love, and what I see is myself, because he was "one of us" - a member of my family. It is no wonder that some individuals who have been adopted have such a strong need to search for their blood roots.

My best memories of my brother are the times when we laughed together. But I also have other fond memories, like the time when we were young adults, sitting cross-legged on the floor discussing spiritual matters. I shared with him about the love of God, and gave him my Bible. There was another time that I remember with a softness in my heart because it was tense time of confrontation, at my sister's wedding reception decades ago. I was wearing a beautiful dress and yelled at Mike for coming to the reception intoxicated.

Good times and hard challenges - all families have them. I will miss my brother but am grateful for the years we shared on this planet Earth.
