“ In remembrance of my dear sweet lovable brother, Clarence... I'm finally to the point where I can talk of him without feeling so depressed. I will always remember his smile and sweet manners and the way he always loved teasing me whenever he got the chance. I can still hear him cracking jokes during our conversations. He was not a man of many words but his words were always sweet and funny.

We only had a few years together as kids growing up because of a separation so I never really had the chance to know Clarence the adult.

He was an adorable child. Quiet, helpful and had a great imagination which allowed him to spend time on his own. He was a very easy child to care for. He listened well, loved playing games and could keep secrets really well. He loved to get dressed up to go somewhere. which also lent to his nick name GO ( getty up and go). He always shared everything with me.

For years I felt that I lost my Brother when he was only ten years old. It was very sad not having my siblings with me growing up. It wasn't until 1995 that we reunited and I met him and his wife Rene. It was a short but lovely reunion. we lived in different states and living our lives with our loved ones. In 2009 we reunited again when I made a trip to Texas and he and Rene made a visit to the Hotel for a few hours and before departing he presented me with a beautiful sister hearted necklace. I still have that necklace and will cherish it more than ever! Thank you Brother!

Like myself Clarence never had any children but loved and adored being around as many children as he could. It seemed that every child was a special gift to him.

My sweet Brother your presence won't be forgotten. You left an imprint that we all were blessed with and will reflect upon when we think of you. You were a special and beautiful blessing a gift to us all. You left this world very early but was needed elsewhere.

*Someday I pray that we will be together again. Until then my sweet lovable brother may you rest in peace. I love you and I miss you!
Say hello to NeNe and Julie for me.
with Love always your sister Sandra Lee.*
