And being raised by a narcissistic toddler, does not mean I had a father. You all are diluted and disgusting and I hope you grow up.

They forgot about the part where he berated you and emotionally abused you for 14 years. They forgot about the part where he brought an inmate home from jail to live in your home with his children. They forgot about the part where he told you he would never regret anything he ever did. They must have selective memory, to think there is anything to honor in this space with this human.

Generational trauma, parental alienation, narcissistic abuse, chronic neglect, cptsd, sexual deviance, drug and alcohol abuse. There was never one moment of parenting or love. The entire experience was based on narcissistic abuse, and that is definitely not worth celebrating. You are all in denial. And everyone is laughing at you.
