“David, or 'Dave,' as we called him, was an integral part of life at Southwestern College, where we both attended in the late 70s and early 80s. David was known for his voice, a rich operatic tenor who sang often in chapel as well as the choir and traveling singing ensemble. He was the official birthday announcer, almost weekly standing by the cafeteria door and ringing the famous bell... "May I have your attention please," he would say. "We have a very special birthday today! Let's all sing 'happy birthday' to" Dave was a hoot when playing volleyball, using his famous backhand to effortlessly send the ball flying. His laugh was unmistakable, his presence everywhere, and his spirit forever remembered in the hearts of his classmates and acquaintances.
