

Dolores Mello

April 4, 1949 - December 16, 2016

My sweet momma went to be with her Dad and niece Mickie on December 16th, 2016. It was a long war in the sense that she had cancer since 2006, but the last battle was relatively quick, and she fought so hard. She never gave up hope even when the doctors told her she didn't have long to live. She refused to give up. I think that is something we all will forever admire in her-her unending faith. She accepted every person for who they were. She never judged anyone. She loved every living creature and tried to save every animal she could. I know if you are here today, she has touched your life in some way or another. Our entire family thanks you for being here today to celebrate her life, to comfort us during this devastating time, and to maybe learn a little something from the way she lived. I encourage you to find the good in people. I challenge you to stop judging upon first glance. I hope that after today you will realize the importance of every moment with the people you love. And I hope you do so in memory of her, because that is what she would have wanted.
