“ I grew up with Robin in Las Animas as our mothers were close friends. Robin and I had some good times at his father's junkyard-- shooting unusable windows out of old vehicles. Later Robin went to work for the Postal Service in La Junta and later in Colo Spgs. I too was a Postmaster (Las Animas) and ran into Robin from time-to-time. He asked me to serve on a detail in Crested Butte one year and I even put on a postmaster training session when he was a Post Office Operations Manager on the Western Slope. Last time I visited him was right before he retired from the Castle Rock Postmaster position. We had a great talk about the days of old and of growing up together in Las Animas. One-of-a-kind. He will be missed.
