“Ryahh was my biggest role model. She was everything to me. All of our memories were nothing but good and she always made me laugh no matter what. She is truly the bestest friend anyone could ever have. I would always talk about her at school telling people " I miss Ryahh" knowing I talked to her literally that morning. I couldn't wait to go home to facetime and play games with her. She's the one person I would tell everything to. All the nights we spent sleepless was worth it because I was talking to her. I loved to play Roblox with her and learn more games to play. I loved to just sit there watching mukbangs and talk about the silly cravings she always had. I always fell asleep on the phone with her watching tikoks. I wanted her to do my makeup so badly because I loved how it looked on her and we'd always plan when to hang out so she could do it on me. In 6th grade I always ran up to her after school making sure to say hi because she was all I looked for in my day. I loved how she spoke and how she worded things, that's why I especially loved playing who's lying with her because we'd understand what we are trying to get at. She was truly the most sweetest person ever and I'm so glad I was able to call her my friend. I really miss you everyday Ryahh, I just want you to come back.”

“ This video has to be my favorite memory we had so much fun that day. Ryahh told me to put my eyelashes on but I didn't bring them that day so we made tape eyelashes for me. Ive never forgotten all the fun we had and all the memories from day one. Ryahh has always been a bright light, a sweet person, and definitely kind. With a beautiful heart, smile and soul. I will always cherish every moment we had together and always hold you in my heart.

“ Something memorable I wanted to share about Syria would the way she would be a listening ear and a shoulder to lean on without judgement, her ability to make others feel comfortable around her, her ability to treat others with compassion and kindness, she always made me feel so heard and seen which is something I've always admired about her and it's something & I will never forget . She was truly a gem, with her heart, mind and spirit, I know she's gonna continue watching down on us, I love you Syria we miss and love you endlessly...until we meet again!

“ If I had to share my memories with Ryahh I'd be writing for hours. If you knew Ryahh she was the brightness to the room, the one who knew how to make you laugh, the one who'd listen to anything you have to say, the life of the party. Ryahh and I have been close since I could remember my cousin, built in bestie, and my soulmate. We could talk about anything and nothing for hours. I remember the endless calls when she lived in Denver, playing Roblox all night, and going up to visit her just to lay in her bed and make TikTok's. I remember the day she taught me how to put on eyelashes AND IM THE OLDER COUSIN 😭💕 Or when we both lived at my grandmas and we'd go to the houses that were getting built and take the extra wood to build our own tree house. I'll carry our memories with me forever💔 I'll always keep your name alive my beautiful, kind smart, loving bestfriend I'll miss you forever. Until we meet again🕊️ #LongLiveSyriahLynn💕🦋
