“ Wayne was one of my favorite students I have ever had the blessing to teach in my 30+ years at Central High. He was always so honest and comfortable with me about his life, what he had been through, and all he had overcome - all in just those first few, yet crucial years, of his life. I loved his sense of humor. How many days he lifted my spirits as a teacher. He had such compassion for others. Wayne nominated me for "Who's Who Among American High School Teachers." That moved me so deeply. I think it hit home the fact that maybe, just maybe, i was helping to make a positive difference in young people's lives afterall. After he graduated - and Wayne was a VERY PROUD CENTRAL WILDCAT - I lost touch with him, but often wondered where life's journey had taken him. It was sad and shocking to open the paper and see his obituary. Two of my best, brightest and most likeable kids I ever taught lived in a resident facility. Wayne was one of whom I often bragged. Reading his on-line obituary, I am happy that it seems Wayne ended up a happy and very beloved person. What a great life, what a great and loving person. That gives me peace and great joy - and I am sure that he is now happy and at peace for all eternity. To one of my favorite kids ever, rest in peace and thank you for blessing my life.

Your favorite teacher at Central (and still there!),
